Walking the Labyrinth

Seven movements to carry with you on the path

There is one way in and one way out. You cannot get lost. Walk at your own pace; there is no right speed and no wrong way to feel.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | InvocationARRIVE | Pause at the entrance. Let your feet settle. Set a simple intention: a question, a hope, or just "presence." |
| 2 | RecognitionRELEASE | As you step onto the path, notice your usual patterns of thought. You don't have to carry them in. |
| 3 | CenteringBREATHE | Walk slowly. Notice sounds and light for 10–15 seconds, then breathe: in slowly, out slowly, twice. What needs to be changed, forgiven, cleared, confronted, or healed? |
| 4 | UnificationREST | At the center, stop. Breathe in, breathe out, twice. Stay as long as you like. |
| 5 | RealizationRECEIVE | Give yourself permission to feel more centered, relaxed and peaceful in mind, body and spirit. |
| 6 | ThanksgivingRETURN | Walk back out the same path, breathing slowly and giving thanks with each step. |
| 7 | BenedictionGO FORWARD | At the exit, turn and face the labyrinth. "May the energy of curiosity guide us as we continue this journey. And so it is." |

The breath: slowly breathe in, slowly breathe out. Again: slowly in, slowly out. Return to it whenever your mind wanders.

Walk in any way that is comfortable: shoes or barefoot, with a cane, walker or wheelchair, or with a companion. Stop and rest whenever you need to. Afterward, take a few minutes to journal.

Adapted from The Awkward Season: Prayers for Lent by Pamela C. Hawkins, pp. 111–112. Copyright © 2009 by Upper Room Books. Used with permission.